

Keith Jones is General Counsel to the National Association of Clean Water Agencies in Washington DC. In that position, he represents the interests of the country's wastewater treatment agencies. Previously, he was General Counsel to the Philadelphia Water Department, one of the largest wastewater, drinking water, and stormwater utilities in the nation. Mr. Jones holds a BA in Communications from Rider University, a JD from the Temple University School of Law, and a Masters Degree in Environmental Studies from the University of Pennsylvania.