 Founded in 1989, INECE is the only global network focused exclusively on achieving compliance with environmental law through effective compliance promotion and enforcement strategies.

INECE carries out this mission by sharing news and other developments, publishing research, and convening expert working groups to develop best-practices in environmental compliance and enforcement. INECE maintains an extensive online library of compliance and enforcement resources, including its Principles of Environmental Compliance and Enforcement Handbook. INECE likewise organizes trainings, meetings, and conferences to strengthen environmental compliance and enforcement worldwide.

INECE works to strengthen compliance and enforcement across a wide range of environmental issues. These include climate and air, biodiversity, chemicals and waste, forest and water management, oceans, and seaports. INECE also builds developing nations' capacity to enforce and foster compliance with domestic and international environmental laws.

In addition to Members, INECE engages a network of affiliates around the world that include environmental regulators, investigators, prosecutors, judges, scholars, and other professionals, representing over 150 countries (pictured left). Officials from other governmental organizations, such as customs and police departments, non-governmental organizations, academia, the media, and business also participate. INECE supports the work of regional environmental compliance and enforcement networks such as IMPEL (Europe), AELERT (Australasia), AECEN (Asia), EANECE (East Africa) and RedLaFiCA (Latin America).

INECE's Executive Committee includes representatives from the United States Environmental Protection Agency, the United Nations Environment Programme, Chile's Superintendencia del Medio Ambiente, the Netherlands Ministry of Environment and Infrastructure, the Environment Agency of England, Brazil's Superior Tribunal de Justiça, and the Scottish Environment Protection Agency. The Environmental Law Institute serves as Secretariat, overseeing the Network's day-to-day activities.

Become a Member of INECE

INECE relies on contributions from its members to carry out its activities. In return for an annual membership fee, both individuals and institutions receive:

- Access to INECE training materials and publications.
- Global networking opportunities
- Other benefits

For more information, please visit www.inece.org/about/membership.

Please also subscribe to the free monthly newsletter for news, recent publications, upcoming events, and job opportunities, and follow INECE on Twitter, LinkedIn, and Facebook.